An image's voice separates us from the past, a time and a place that darkened more everyday to the speed of the years. An image of nothing and of transparency. The invisible transformation of senses. Two images, two generations. Two faces, two movements, two breaths that touch each other in the distance. An old breath and a new born one. Two looks. Four eyes, panoramic format. A grandmother, a great-granddaughter. What will see each of the women?
